

Testing Update

Assisted Living tenants continue to be COVID-19 and symptom free. They have not been tested in approximately a month, so we will be conducting testing for all tenants next week.

Care Center and Assisted Living staff were all negative last week; this week's staff results are still pending.

We had one resident from the Care Center who was sent to the hospital this week where they were swabbed and came back positive. This resident had already tested positive before, so we are working with our Medical Director on how to interpret this. Our testing strategy has shifted from testing all residents toward a more targeted approach. This week we tested the unit where this re-positive individual lived. Everyone on that unit has come back negative.

Another round of good news, for which we are so thankful!
